

LAST OF HIS RACE.

Something About George Davis Buried Sunday.

Decendent of One of the First White Settlers—Grandson of Isaac Davis of the "Fair American."

George Davis, who was buried on Sunday last, was the son of George Hene Davis, the son of Isaac Davis, who with John Young were companions in arms with Kamehameha I. His brother, Isaac Young Davis, was the last husband of the late Princess Ruth.

Of the arrival of Isaac Davis in this country, Professor Alexander in his brief history says:

"About the end of the year 1789 Captain Metcalf, an American fur trader, in company with the snow 'Eleanor,' visited the islands on his way to China. His son, only eighteen years of age, commanded a little schooner called the 'Fair American,' which had been detained by the Spaniards at Nootka Sound.

"Near the end of February, 1790, the 'Eleanor' crossed the Hawaiian channel and anchored off Honolulu, Maui. There Kaopuki, the chief of Oahu, with his men, stole a boat from its moorings one night at the stern and murdered the sailor who was sleeping in it. * * * When Captain Metcalf learned that the offenders came from Oahu, he proceeded thither in the 'Eleanor,' and after a certain time was over resumed trade with the natives. A great number of canoes from far and near had crowded around his ship, when suddenly a broadside of cannon and musketry was fired upon them, and the waves were covered with dead and dying. Over a hundred were killed and many more wounded.

"After this cruel and wanton massacre of innocent people, Captain Metcalf returned to Hawaii and lay off and on near Kealahou Bay waiting for the tender, which arrived about this time off Kaula.

Kamehameha visited the vessels with a fleet of canoes, as if to trade, and while the younger Metcalf was off his guard threw him overboard and massacred all the crew except the mate, Isaac Davis. The next day Young of the 'Eleanor' found himself alone on shore and was detained until the 'Eleanor' left for China.

Both Davis and Young were treated with great consideration by Kamehameha, but they were closely watched to prevent their leaving.

Some time later Young and Davis rendered valuable assistance to Kamehameha in conquering the tribes on other parts of the islands. Davis settled on Hawaii and married a high chiefess.

When Vancouver came here and left a lot of cattle they were placed on Hawaii and the King put a tabu on them for ten years. In some way one was accidentally killed and Davis took the beef to the natives and told them it was beef. (He never learned Hawaiian.) From that word came 'pipi,' because they found it difficult to pronounce 'beef.'

Davis was responsible for the word 'kao' in reference to goats. He was possessed of a fairly good cow and some goats, but in the course of time the cow went dry and the old man used goats' milk. Telling natives to milk the goat he jokingly called it a cow, and the natives have since called a goat a kao.

With his death ended the last of the male members of the Davis family.
